

International Conference

THE DEMOGRAPHY OF FIRMS AND INDUSTRIES

To be held at

The University Paris Est Créteil

Department of Business and Economics

20th and 21st January 2011

The severity of the current economic crisis requires we address the effect of Firm Demography (i.e. the entry, exit or restructuration of productive units) on the main economic aggregates, including growth, employment and innovation. A growing body of the academic literature, both theoretical and empirical, is now devoted to the different issues addressed in this field, including entry and exit processes, survival of new firms, entrepreneurship, the relationship between aggregate industry life cycle and the firm demography. The topic of this conference is intentionally broad and designed to encourage submissions of high quality papers related to firm and industry demography from many different perspectives. Of interest will be,

Entry, exit and firms' survival
Innovation and new entrants
The spatial dimension of firm demography
Entrepreneurship and firm demography
Industry dynamics and firm demography
Job destruction, jobs creation and firm dynamics

Internationalization (trade, ownership and FDI) and firm demography
The impact of public policy especially competition and industrial policy
Methodological issues about firm and industries dynamics
The econometrics of firm demography
